

With the Winter Weather Advisory lifted by the National Weather Service, we want to give our community an update on operations.

- The treatment plant and all but one pump station are on utility power and operating normally.
- Our smallest pump station that serves two small subdivisions off Wells Highway is still offline due to a power outage. We will continue to use our tanker to pump-and-haul wastewater from the station until it is back in operation. There has not been a spill associated with this outage.
- We are not aware of any spills or other issues in the OJRSA conveyance system at this time. We will inspect all exposed lines (e.g., aerial creek crossings) and easements once it is safe to do so.

We thank everyone who worked hard making sure our sites were operational the past few days.
